If there is life out there... Why are we alone?

This is the question we all ask. If we are not alone and there is another species out there that can see us, why have they never introduced themselves? What are they afraid of?

RUSHING TO SLOW DOWN is the story of ETHAN, an alien from another world, and his race to find HENRY, his lost crew member who never returned from his mission on earth.

Kate escapes the captivity of the big city for a weekend camping trip when she picks up Ethan, disoriented and alone in the middle of a country road.

Not afraid of adventure, Kate agrees to help Ethan on his mission to find Henry. Although not convinced of Ethan's wild claims, Kate continues to have doubt while the world around them hunts for an international terrorist.

Kate finds this amusing at first. She thinks Ethan is just a cute guy who's messing around and telling a story to get her attention... until she witnesses Ethan's extra terrestrial powers and becomes a believer, but this draws attention to their location and the agency tasked with finding the terrorist is soon in their pursuit.

Will they find Henry?

Will the agency capture them and expose Ethan's truth?

Why won't Ethan's species engage with humanity and our cultural values?
